

Niagara College Retirees' Association

Invites you to join us for lunch and an interesting presentation on:

Bees for Newbies with Miriam Richards

Wednesday, April 5, 2017 at 12:00 noon

Cost: $22.00 (tax and gratuities included)

Miriam Richards is a professor in the Dept. of Biological Sciences at Brock University as well as a passionate and entertaining champion of bees – those often overlooked little critters that work tirelessly in our gardens and fields to produce both beauty and the food we depend on to sustain us.

When most people think 'bees', they think 'honeybees'. But there's a lot more to Niagara's bee fauna than honeybees. Niagara is home to at least 154 species of bees as different from honeybees as you can possibly imagine. We'll meet a few of them as we delve into the habits and habitats of Niagara's hidden bee species.

A delicious lunch will include:

Salad, Chicken and Pork Kebabs, Rice and Potatoes, Dessert and Tea, Coffee and Pop
Note: vegetarian option is available (veggie kebabs)

We must receive your payment by Tuesday, March 28. You can pay in one of the following ways:

- Give your cheque (with the order form below) to any member of the Executive at any NCRA event on or prior to March 28.
